You're Korean, aren't you?

Yes.

Why don't you speak Korean?

Just don't, I guess.

Say something Korean.

I don't speak it.

I can't.

C'mon. Say something.

Halmoni. Grandmother.

Haraboji. Grandfather.

Imo. Aunt.

Say some other stuff.

Sounds funny.

Sounds strange.

Hey, let's listen to you for a change.

Say some foreign words.

Your family came from somewhere else.

Sometime.

So was I.

But I was born here.
"Speak Up" poses an interesting question: just what does make someone an American? Is it something you can see? Is it about where you were born? Is it about where your ancestors came from? Is it about what you can contribute to your country?
Complete the Following Chart about the Speakers of "Speak Up":

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Character Analysis Chart</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Character 1</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Qualities</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Evidence &amp; Details</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>